

ST JOHN'S
College
ANNAPOLIS • SANTA FE

Fall 2021

Dear incoming student,

St. John's College is committed to fostering an inclusive environment for all students where diversity is valued in the pursuit of knowledge. Each student brings unique perspectives, abilities, and skills which together form the greater community in which we live, work, and learn. Students with disabilities are just one group of students that comprise our diverse community.

St. John's College works with students seeking reasonable accommodations as outlined in the Americans with Disabilities Act and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act including academic accommodations, housing accommodations, and policy accommodations. If you would like accommodations, please submit the attached "Request for Accommodations" form and associated documentation supporting your request to start the review process. Once you have made a request and submitted the appropriate documentation, it will be reviewed and you will receive an email with information about next steps. It may take up to three weeks to receive a response to the request and documentation materials, so it is important to make this request quickly.

Students seeking housing accommodations should complete the request process before May 28, 2021. Due to limitations on housing supply, it may not be possible to accommodate a housing accommodation request received after the deadline.

Students are not required to register for accommodations, identify themselves to any members of the College community as a person with a disability, or utilize accommodations they do not need or want. Accommodation requests are evaluated on a case-by-case basis within the structure of the College program. Accommodations are not retroactive, so it is important that you seek accommodations in a timely fashion to avoid unanticipated consequences.

Should you have any questions or would like to discuss your specific needs, please email me at Danielle.Lico@sjc.edu.

Sincerely,

Danielle Lico
Executive Director, Campus Wellness

Documentation Requirements

- Learning/Cognitive Disabilities, including Attention Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder
 - The letter must be written on letterhead, dated, signed and include the name, area of specialty, and credentials of the person writing the evaluation. Please note evaluations from family members will not be considered.
 - Diagnostic overview (including specific diagnosis using DSM-5); a description of the problem(s) reported by the student; relevant medical/psychological history; family history; and, as appropriate, a discussion of dual diagnosis. Academic and educational history must be included.
 - Testing that demonstrates the limitation of a major life activity as a result of the disability. Evidence of a substantial limitation to learning or other aspects of academic performance must be apparent. The domains to be assessed should include aptitude, academic achievement (reading, mathematics, and written and oral language) and information processing (short and long-term and sequential memory, auditory and visual processing, processing speed, and executive functioning). Test scores should be provided for all measures and appropriate for an adolescent or adult population. Testing must have occurred within the past three years.
 - Clinical Summary, containing the following components: an interpretation of the test findings that lead to the diagnosis; a description of the effects of that diagnosis on the student's academic performance; recommendations for specific accommodations with a clear justification for how those accommodations will mediate academic performance difficulties.
- Chronic Health Conditions/Physical Disabilities
 - The letter must be written on letterhead, dated, signed and include the name, area of specialty, and credentials of the person writing the evaluation. Please note evaluations from family members will not be considered.
 - Diagnostic overview, including date of first onset, specific interventions, medications, prognosis, and, as appropriate, a discussion of dual diagnosis. Please note that vague descriptions will not be sufficient to evaluate the need for accommodations.
 - Testing that demonstrates the limitation of a major life activity as a result of the disability. Evidence of a substantial limitation to learning or other aspects of academic performance must be apparent. Testing should be recent, as appropriate. If the disability is long-standing in nature, the letter must include the history of the diagnosis, any evolution in presentation, and the frequency of the functional limitation.
 - Clinical Summary, containing the following components: a description of the effects of that diagnosis on the student's academic performance; recommendations for specific accommodations with a clear justification for how those accommodations will mediate academic performance difficulties.
- Hearing Disability
 - The letter must be written on letterhead, dated, signed and include the name, area of specialty, and credentials of the person writing the evaluation. Please note evaluations from family members will not be considered.
 - Diagnostic overview, including date of first onset, specific interventions, prognosis, and, as appropriate, a discussion of dual diagnosis.
 - Documentation should include a signed and dated audiological evaluation report or audiogram (or both).

- Clinical Summary, containing the following components: a description of the effects of that diagnosis on the student's academic performance; recommendations for specific accommodations with a clear justification for how those accommodations will mediate academic performance difficulties.
- Vision Disability
 - The letter must be written on letterhead, dated, signed and include the name, area of specialty, and credentials of the person writing the evaluation. Please note evaluations from family members will not be considered.
 - Diagnostic overview, including date of first onset, specific interventions, prognosis, and, as appropriate, a discussion of dual diagnosis.
 - Documentation should include the results of a recent eye examine that outlines the extent of the vision loss.
 - Clinical Summary, containing the following components: a description of the effects of that diagnosis on the student's academic performance; recommendations for specific accommodations with a clear justification for how those accommodations will mediate academic performance difficulties.
- Psychological/Psychiatric Disabilities
 - The letter must be written on letterhead, dated, signed and include the name, area of specialty, and credentials of the person writing the evaluation. Please note evaluations from family members will not be considered.
 - Diagnostic overview (including specific diagnosis using DSM-5); a description of the presenting symptoms; history of symptom onset; prognosis; and, as appropriate, a discussion of dual diagnosis.
 - Medication management plan that includes side effects or treatment details that could impact academic performance, as appropriate.
 - Clinical Summary, containing the following components: a description of the effects of that diagnosis on the student's academic performance; recommendations for specific accommodations with a clear justification for how those accommodations will mediate academic performance difficulties.

Regardless of diagnosis, the documentation must substantiate a limitation of a major life activity based on the identified disability(ies). Students are free to submit any additional information beyond what is specifically outlined above (Individualized Education Plans/504 Plan, letters documenting prior accommodations) but such information will not, in and of itself, meet the requirements for documentation.

Any submitted materials will remain confidential and will be shared only to the extent required to determine appropriate accommodations or as required by law. Any other disclosures will require the written authorization of the student.
