Publishing

New York University Press, Sales & Marketing Intern
New York, NY

Learn the basics of book publishing! We’ve had six Johnnies intern with the NYU Press—and all have had a wonderful experience! The Press would welcome another Johnnie intern this summer.

NYU Press is looking for a summer intern who is interested in getting a wide range of marketing experience. As a sales and marketing intern, the successful applicant will receive an overview of the specifics of marketing and publicity, both online and print.
The internship will teach the basics of how to craft a marketing plan for a book, how to target online and print media, what goes into setting up events and conferences, how an advertising program works, and social media techniques for promoting authors and their books.

NYU is a learning organization, so everyone in the office is invested in teaching you the things you want to learn, suggesting new ideas or processes that you might enjoy, finding out what you’re good at, and hoping to identify some new opportunities for you.

Note from the New York University Press: “Due to the on-going COVID-19 pandemic, we may be offering the internship as virtual, in-person, or a hybrid experience. Our preference is for in-person and we hope to know soon which option will be available.”

Eligibility: Open to undergraduates
Application deadline: March 1, 2022
Stipend: Unpaid, suitable for Hodson funding
For more information visit: http://nyupress.org/

Teaching & Education

Johns Hopkins University Center for Talented Youth (CTY)
Baltimore, MD and various locations around the country

CTY offers intensive academic instruction to academically talented pre-collegiate students from 2nd to 11th grade. The academic program includes rigorous courses in mathematics, science, computer science, humanities, and writing.

Interns gain practice in a closely supervised and supportive setting. Teaching assistants tutor students, assist with the class paperwork, set-up demonstrations, prepare for and clean up after laboratory sessions, teach the class as requested by the instructor, supervise late afternoon/evening study sessions, assist with administrative tasks such as typing and photocopying, and generally help to ensure that the class runs smoothly. Resident assistants help create a community that encourages and supports intellectual curiosity, rigorous thinking, and a joy for learning. RAs ensure the physical and emotional safety of students and develop a fun, dynamic, and engaging activities program.

CTY is consistently named as one of the top internships in leading publications and has a network of past employees now working in positions ranging from heads of school to deans of students to university professors.

Eligibility: Open to undergraduates, recent graduates, and teachers
Application deadline: Begin considering applications in early January, applications considered on an ongoing basis, visit the website for additional information
Stipend: Teaching Assistants: $3,376 for a seven-week period at a residential site; resident assistants: $3,938 for a seven-week period at a residential site.

Touchstones Discussion Project Summer Internship Program
Stevensville, MD

Touchstones has been called the democratization of education because their discussion-based programs develop thinking and collaboration at the highest levels for all students, regardless of their economic or educational background. For 38 years, Touchstones’ primary focus has been to address gaps in education in K-12 schools by teaching educators and students to use structured dialogue to activate and enliven their thinking and build cooperation and leadership.

Stefanie Takacs (A89), the executive director at Touchstones, is seeking a summer intern. An internship at Touchstones would be appropriate for those interested in opportunities related to K-12 education, educational psychology, social justice (particularly related to marginalized populations and the incarcerated), or leadership development.

Eligibility: Open to undergraduates
Application deadline: March 1, 2022
Stipend: Unpaid, but suitable for Hodson funding

Technology

Offered by the alumni owners of OpenPath Products!
OpenPath Products, SJC Summer Technology Intern, Annapolis, MD

Learn how to apply your St. John’s education to the exhilarating demands of a high-tech career.

St. John’s provides skills that are essential to today’s fast-paced, high-tech working world. Your ability to analyze information, deconstruct ideas, discuss concepts, and document your findings are critical in today’s workforce and particularly in high-tech, entrepreneurial-driven organizations that must anticipate and act on market needs before the competition.

OpenPath Products is a leading software technology company based in Annapolis, MD. OpenPath Products has helped many Johnnies over the past 20 years to apply their classroom skills to learn how to test, document, design and program some of the industry’s most forward-looking software. OpenPath Products was one of the world’s first “mobile app” development companies and has innovated in the areas of mobile streaming media, financial tech, Internet of Things, and healthcare.

Through an OpenPath Products internship, you can learn how modern software is written and deployed to millions of people throughout the world. You will learn to write and execute test plans, collaborate with programmers, and help bring software products to market. OpenPath will train you to use modern tools in software development, including JIRA, Confluence, and various collaboration tools. This is an excellent opportunity for Johnnies to build on their existing skills and learn many new ones.

Eligibility: Open to undergraduate and graduate students
To apply: Please send your resume to Johanna Wilson at info@openpathproducts.com
Stipend: Paid
Application deadline: April 15, 2022
